Background

Dr Sandra Meihubers is a public health dentist highly experienced in community based dental programs, with special expertise in rural and remote Aboriginal community programs in Australia. She has skills in initiating projects and programs in response to identified needs, where it is necessary to work with a range of stakeholders and funders. She has also worked with federal and state governments and non government organisations to conduct regional and statewide reviews of issues affecting the oral health of Aboriginal people. Her education experiences range from training Aboriginal Health Workers to coordinating rural programs for dental undergraduates, as well as curriculum review and development. Since 2000 she has been involved in overseas projects on a voluntary basis, where she has established and run projects in Nepal, East Timor and Bangladesh, and on a consultancy basis with AusAID providing technical advice regarding projects in East Timor and Papua New Guinea.

The combined experiences from working in projects in Australia and overseas have given Sandra the skills to work with many partners, both at community and government levels. Above all she respects the need for accountability, again at both community and government levels, and ongoing evaluation and monitoring of projects. The involvement of local personnel in decision making and planning processes is highly valued, and Sandra has developed great skills in liaising with relevant agencies and individuals who are key to the success of any project.

Primary health care

Sandra has set up rural and remote area dental services within several Aboriginal Community Controlled primary health care services, and currently acts as a Dental Consultant/Advisor to a range of these organisations. She has been instrumental in establishing programs where none previously existed and is a strong advocate for the recognition of oral health in overall health care which has led to involvement in oral health promotion programs. Some examples:

- Staff dentist Aboriginal Medical Service, Redfern, providing dental care at Redfern and outreach services in regional New South Wales (NSW) in a mobile dental van. 1980-93.
- Establishing the dental program for Nganampa Health Council, Anangu Pitjantjatjara Yankunytjatjara (APY) Lands, South Australia (SA), utilising both fixed and mobile dental facilities. The program is ongoing and has a strong preventive and primary care focus, with detailed monitoring through regular data collection and evaluation. 1984-1990.
- Supervising dentist, school dental service, central coast of NSW. 1987-1990.
- Oral health program provider as part of the Far West Well Persons Health Check, for both adults and children, including oral health data collection and analysis, and guidance on development of improved programs for access to dental care and prevention. 2000-2008.
- Rural Health Support Education and Training (Commonwealth Department of Health and Aged Care) grant, to develop "Dentistry in remote Aboriginal Communities", a manual to assist oral health practitioners intending to work in remote Aboriginal communities. This manual has been used extensively in remote Australia by dental practitioners and has also been a teaching tool at universities. 2001.
- Development of the Bila Muuji Oral Health Program, western NSW, with the creation and employment of a Regional Oral Health Promotion Coordinator position to address the oral health needs of the Bila Muuji Aboriginal Health Service member communities ranging from Walgett, Brewarrina and Bourke in north western NSW to Dareton and Balranald in south western NSW. 2006 - 2015.
- Development and ongoing coordination of an enhanced dental care program to the Anindilyakwa people on Groote Eylandt, setting up a partnership between Groote Eylandt and Bickerton Island Enterprises (business arm of the Anindilyakwa Land Council), Oral Health Services Northern Territory, and GEMCO mining company. 2010-current.
- Currently dental consultant and advisor to Nganampa Health Council (SA) since 1999, Walgett Aboriginal Medical Service (NSW) since 1999, Maari Ma Aboriginal Health Corporation (NSW) since 2001, and Anindilyakwa Land Council, Northern Territory (NT) since 2010.

Program review, planning and management

Sandra has considerable experience in reviewing programs and services, and providing advice to governments both state and federal, and to service managers, to guide development of improved dental services. Some examples:

- Review of the dental care for Aboriginal people in the Murdi Paaki region of NSW, leading to improved dental services in the region. 2000.
- Consultant and coordinator, National Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Oral Health Workshop, Office for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Health, Canberra. The outcomes of this workshop formed the basis for the development of the Indigenous Australians section of the national oral health plan: Oral Health of Australians. National Planning for Oral Health Improvement, Australian Health Ministers Conference. 2002.

- Statewide reviews of issues affecting the oral health of Aboriginal people in NSW (2001) - leading to the development of a statewide Aboriginal Oral Health Strategy - and in Victoria. The first review in Victoria (2004) was performed on behalf of the Victorian Aboriginal Community Controlled Health Organisation (VACCHO). The second review, with Atkinson Kerr and Associates, was conducted on behalf of the Victorian Department of Health (2010), providing recommendations on ways to improve access to public dental services for Aboriginal people in Victoria.
- Development of service agreements between state health departments and non government organisations, to work together to improve dental care such as the agreement between the NSW Health Department and Bila Muuji to support oral health promotion programs in western NSW. 2006.
- Development of a Memorandum of Understanding between Bila Muuji and Charles Sturt University (CSU) so that Aboriginal oral health has due recognition in undergraduate training, and which also includes the development of a Bila Muuji scholarship to support undergraduate study at CSU. 2008.
- Technical consultant with JTA International, on behalf of the Office of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Health on a project to review dental services to remote Indigenous communities in the NT, with recommendations for the development of service delivery models. 2009-2011.
- Formative review and evaluation of the Closing the Gap – Indigenous Dental Services in Rural and Regional Areas national mobile infrastructure program, Department of Health and Ageing, Australian Government, 2011-2013.
